Eltham Cinema Proposal

A KEY decision making body will decide whether to proceed with a planning application to turn a council-owned site on Eltham High Street into a cinema.

The Council purchased the former Co-op department store on the High Street just last year. The building sits at the heart of Eltham Town Centre and is the focus of proposals to stimulate the local high street economy and in particular to encourage more residents and visitors to the town during the evening.

Leading cinema operators have now expressed an interest in the site after discussions took place with community representatives about the best possible uses for the building.

The proposal is part of a masterplan for Eltham Town Centre which aims to promote economic growth by developing key sites and making improvements to the area.

The council has four masterplan sites in total which focus on regenerating key sites in the borough: Eltham Town Centre, Charlton Riverside, Greenwich Peninsula and Woolwich Town Centre. The areas have been identified as those which can best promote growth and prosperity across the borough as a whole.

The master plans all feed into the borough's "Growth Strategy", an overall vision for growth, regeneration and employment. It also sets out the Woolwich library 5th busiest in UK?

ON the front page of Greenwich Time issue 247, it was stated that Woolwich Library is now the fifth busiest library in the UK. Can you please advise me where that statistic comes from?

● Thanks for your letter and sorry for any confusion caused. Attendances at Woolwich library have increased since the new, larger, facility opened in the Woolwich Centre. Figures vary from month to month and we have asked our library service to look into the source of the figures you quote. The latest available figures from The Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy (CIPFA) show that Woolwich library is currently ranked as the tenth most visited library service in London. SANGEETHA MENON: 'I took this during my marathon practice in Greenwich'

Where and how are the trees planted in 1973 campaign?

DURING the plant a tree in 73 campaign, we took the attached photograph in, we think Eltham Pleasance, but it may have been in Greenwich Park, in 1973. We wondered if you could perhaps update us on how that programme progressed and where the trees planted then are, and how they are doing forty years on?

Davina and Paul Ramshaw, Lee

● THANK you for the picture, our parks team believe the photo was taken at Charlton Park. In 1973 parks and open spaces was run by the royal borough's Leisure Services and there is no detailed documentation from that time regarding any planting schemes however, our arboricultural team inspects and maintains all trees in the borough. You might be interested to know that the royal borough led on the planting of 2,012 trees in the run up to the Olympic and Paralympic Games. After consultation with residents, they were planted at various sites across the borough including schools, highways and open spaces as part of the borough's Olympic legacy. Most of the varieties planted are native to this country and particularly hardy and are expected to flourish for many years.

Estate welcomes new outdoor gym

RESIDENTS on the Caletock Estate don't need to wait for the new year to make resolutions about getting fitter.

They've got a brand new outdoor gym in the heart of the east Greenwich estate which opened last week. And they were joined by Greenwich councillors Peter Kotz and Steve Offord for the official unveiling of the new facility.

The gym, funded by the royal borough's Olympic Legacy Fund, is part of its Playground to Podium initiative which has so far seen £5m investment in sport, play and fitness facilities for local people.

It is on previously unused land in the middle of the east Greenwich estate and now has new equipment that has been designed so it's easy to use by people of all ages and with a range of abilities.

Machines range from the 'Pull Down Challenger' to the 'Right-Hand Boat' and 'Skier', which offer users a comprehensive workout, whether its building up leg muscles, to exercising arms and upper body, or cardio-vascular activity.

Tenant Pauline Webb, who is chair of the Peninsula and Blackheath Westcombe Housing Panel, has been working to bring an outdoor gym to the community and told GT: "We wanted somewhere for an outdoor gym and this is ideal. It will really help the residents. It's perfectly located and there's equipment for all abilities here."

Melic Kirici, a resident and student said: "It will be good for local people as it keeps people healthy and motivated. It's better than staying indoors."

Benjamin Ofosu-Safo of the Charlton Athletic Community Trust who showed residents how to use the machines, said: "These machines are enjoyable to use and suitable for everyone."

Alex Dodds, another local resident said: "The land wasn't in use before this so now this is much better - I'll be coming down every now and then." And William Mackay added: "I've been part of the community here since 1975 and I think it will be beneficial to people in the long-term. People of all ages will use it."

Cllr Peter Kotz, the council's cabinet member for cultural and creative industries said:

"This gym has been created with funding from the royal borough's Olympic Legacy Fund and will provide a great platform for all those who were inspired by the Games in 2012 to keep active. The equipment is really inclusive and it means that everyone in the local community will be able to benefit from it whatever their ability."

Cllr Steve Offord, cabinet member for housing said: "We've been working hard alongside the housing panel to deliver a new outdoor gym in this part of the royal borough and now opened, it will provide excellent facilities for local residents, ensure they have the facilities to stay fit and healthy - a commitment outlined in our Olympic Legacy strategy."

Organised Crime Unit's Latest Success

Council-backed division sends major drug dealer to jail

by Dick Townsend-Smith

A COUNCIL-backed crime unit is celebrating after a persistent drug dealer was jailed.

Jeremiah Johnson, 20, was jailed for five years 10 months after pleading guilty to supplying class A and B drugs in Greenwich and Croydon.

He was sentenced at Woolwich Crown Court, where he admitted possession with intent to supply class A and B drugs, driving while disqualified and injuring a police officer while resisting arrest.

It is another success for the Violent and Organised Crime Unit (VOCU), the crime-fighting division funded by the council.

Johnson, of Walnut Road, E10, was first stopped by police in Charlton last December when driving a car despite being disqualified. He gave a false name.

He later ran off when he was stopped while driving two days later, when officers found several bags of cannabis and £270 inside the vehicle.

They also discovered cocaine concealed in a cigarette box.

In February he was arrested in Croydon on suspicion of drug dealing. Police found he was wanted in the royal borough.

Given bail, he was then found at an address in Lewisham Hill a few days later - when VOCU officers carried out a search warrant - with class A and B drugs.

He was arrested with intent to supply.

While on police bail, on April 26 he was seen driving a vehicle in Greenwich. No longer banned, he still had no insurance or a valid licence and gave a false name to the officers before fleeing.

Three days later, the same officers arrested him, but he initially resisted and an officer suffered a broken finger. Drugs were found in his clothing and he was charged with the offences for which he was sentenced on November 6.

DC Laura Hills from the Greenwich VOCU said: "Johnson was clearly involved in drug dealing in both Croydon and Greenwich and, despite his repeated attempts of trying to evade arrest and giving police false details, he now faces a considerable time behind bars.

LATEST SUCCESS: The Council funded VOCU has made further arrests.

"Those who deal drugs cause significant harm to our communities and we will continue to target those individuals that are involved in this.

"If you have concerns or suspect drug dealing in your local area then you can contact us or Crimestoppers, which is completely anonymous and we will take positive action to identify, arrest and convict those responsible as we have done with Johnson."

Crimestoppers can be called on 0800 555 111 or the police on 101.

Cllr Chris Roberts, leader of the royal borough, said: "This success demonstrates the worth of our dedicated team battling organised and violent crime.

"The royal borough is determined to thwart such persistent criminals, whose activities can seriously damage the community."

...and now police want your help

POLICE in Greenwich have released three images of men they want to talk to in relation to incidents. The first is Harry Roe, 26, (pictured right) who they want to talk to in connection with an allegation of serious assault in Middle Park Avenue, Eltham.

He has connections with the borough and also Mottingham and Orpington.

DC Dan Byron, from police in Greenwich said: "I am keen to speak with Harry Roe or hear from anyone who can provide us with his contact details or whereabouts. If you know where he is, please contact us."

Anyone with information should call Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111 or The Greenwich 'Wanted Persons' telephone line on 0203 276 0750.

Police also want to speak to this man (right) after a robbery in Lloyds Bank, on Powis Street, Woolwich, on August 19.

The incident happened at about 3pm.

The victim, a woman aged 24, entered Lloyds Bank intending to pay cash into one of the deposit boxes.

The woman was waiting in the queue when the suspect, a white man in his 20s, entered the branch.

He approached the victim from behind and grabbed her around the neck, throwing her onto the floor. He subsequently stole her £280 cash and ran away.

Officer in the case Acting Detective Sergeant Scott Albert, said: "We are keen to speak with the man in the image released in connection with our ongoing enquiries. If you know his identity or his whereabouts, please contact us. We will treat all information in the strictest confidence."

The third man (left) is wanted for questioning in connection with a burglary in Eltham on September 26.

At about 3.30pm, a man walked into a pet shop in Chequers Parade, Eltham and went into the staff room. When challenged, he became aggressive and left. A total of £30 was stolen from handbags.

ADS Albert said: "We are keen to talk to the man in the image. He wears a very distinctive hat - anyone with information about his identity or whereabouts should contact us."

If you have information, contact ADC Albert on 0208 284 9449 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111.

44 arrested in crackdown on travelling criminals

OFFICERS from Greenwich were part of a Met police team who took part in a crackdown on travelling criminals.

A total of 44 people were arrested in a day of coordinated actions as part of Operation Lockdown last Thursday (November 14).

They worked with officers from other London boroughs including Lewisham, Bromley, Lambeth, Croydon, Southwark, Wandsworth and Bexley as well as police from Kent, Essex and Surrey and the British Transport

EFFECTIVE TOOL: a number plate recognition vehicle used in Operation Lockdown

Police.

Officers were out in force disrupting travelling criminals and preventing cross-border crime.

The arrests were made for offences that included burglary, robbery, handling stolen goods, possession of an offensive weapon, possession with intent to supply drugs, theft, immigration offences and ABH.

Working alongside Kent, Surrey and British

Transport Police, officers used Automatic Number Plate Recognition (ANPR) technology to identify vehicles driven by suspected criminals.

Officers carried out a total of 762 stops, 238 searches and seized 40 vehicles for a variety of motoring offences.

A total of 5 stolen phones were recovered together with two knives, a snooker ball in a sock and £5,500 in cash.

Chief Inspector Stuart Bell from the MPS, who coordinated the operation, said: "We are determined to disrupt criminals who use the road network to commit crime. Operations like this ensure that we can stop and effectively disrupt these individuals and prevent their movement across London and into neighbourhood counties.

He added: "ANPR is an effective and intelligent tool that allows us to target known criminals and those who are wanted for serious offences. Yesterday's operation showed how this can work to catch offenders and make communities safer."

Agonising days for Filipino community

THE royal borough's Filipino community have spent agonising days waiting for news of loved ones after Typhoon Haiyan cut a devastating swathe through the central Philippines two Fridays ago (November 8).

With phone lines and broadband links out of action, many families still have no idea whether their relatives survived or are safe.

About 80 families belong to the Greenwich Filipino Community, an association of Filipinos living and working locally.

They include about 30 nurses, who work at the Queen Elizabeth Hospital in Woolwich or in local care homes.

Moises Espanola, convenor of the association, told GT: "The typhoon affected five major islands and an estimated 10,000 people are dead. The news is very, very sad."

"We are still staying hopeful, but you feel you cannot do anything."

"People are just hoping they will get good news from their relatives, but no one is sure what is happening."

"We are hoping we can still find relatives who are missing, and hear from them directly."

"Our community is trying to support all its members by consoling them and talking to each other about what has happened."

"I don't come from any of the islands affected, and I called my relatives in the capital Manila."

"But we cannot contact my dad, who is 75. He is on one of the islands with my nephew, so we are worried about them."

"My mum went to Manila two weeks before, so she is OK."

The community is raising funds to support the disaster appeal.

Oxfam says the next few weeks are critical. Hundreds of thousands of people have no shelter, food or water and families are having to drink contaminated water from wells.

The threat of disease and malnutrition is high, and about 4.5 million people from 36 provinces have been affected.

Two food sales are being planned in Greenwich, one at St Peter's Catholic Church, in Woolwich New Road, and the other at Our Lady of Grace RC Church, in Charlton. Dates are to be confirmed.

Passengers demand more seats on trains

by Dick Townsend-Smith

Survey also criticises some bus drivers

PUBLIC transport chiefs heard what people in the royal borough think about their services in a question-and-answer session with royal borough councillors.

It followed a detailed online survey by the council in October.

People were asked what they thought about travelling on buses, trains, the DLR, London Underground, river buses and the cross-Thames cable car.

Results showed that most people thought bus services were reliable, safe and good value. But some drivers came in for criticism for being inconsiderate and impatient.

Train passengers were almost equally divided on whether they thought services were reliable and good value for money, but trains were criticised for not having enough seats or space.

A big majority felt DLR trains were reliable, safe, clean and good value for money. The cable car and river bus services were deemed reliable and safe.

The findings were discussed between transport chiefs, the royal borough's scrutiny committee and its scrutiny panel members at a meeting on November 5.

The main discussion points involved the rebuilding of London Bridge station, the behaviour of bus drivers, and whether the DLR would be extended.

The meeting heard there will be significant disruption while London Bridge is being overhauled to raise the number of platforms by half as many

RELIABLE: The DLR was given a thumbs up by customers in a survey of public transport across London again. The impact on the borough's residents was outlined, with Charing Cross trains diverted to Cannon Street, and not stopping at London Bridge.

Trains with 12 carriages will ease overcrowding, but the platform at Woolwich Dockyard will not be long enough, so they will be unable to stop there.

Transport for London (TfL) outlined its training scheme for drivers, and asked for all incidents of rudeness or obstructive behaviour to be reported so they can investigate and take action.

Disruption caused by Charlton Athletic Football Club's matches was discussed, including the lack of bus stop signs to tell passengers about changes to routes and timetables.

Calendar set to raise money for riding charity

THERE's been some funny goings-on in Charlton in recent weeks, with semi-naked people posing for photographs at sunrise.

But it's all been for a good cause, designed to boost funds for the park's Riding for the Disabled Association centre.

The group has produced its own Calendar Girls-type offering for 2014.

Photographers gave their time for free, the printers provided a big discount and volunteers designed the artwork on their own computers.

The idea came from chief instructor Carol Kendal, who has been involved with the centre for about 25 years.

She told GT: "We call the calendar 'The Naked Truth of Charlton Park RDA', and I'm really pleased and chuffed with it. It was something different to help us raise funds and I'm really proud of it."

The calendar is available in exchange for a minimum donation of £5 via ringing 020 8317 1528 or 07877 320406.

It is also stocked by Sainsbury's on Bugsby's

Way, which has chosen the centre as its charity of the year, Meridian Magazine in Charlton Village High Street, and Speedgate saddlery in Sidcup.

GARDEN GREATS: Winners and runners up receive their awards

FRONT gardens bustling with colourful plants and the best use of a window box to brighten the borough have been celebrated at the awards ceremony for Greenwich in Bloom.

A summer of spectacular sights helped put the green in Greenwich in the annual competition.

Residents were urged to help underline the royal borough's commitment to improving the environment for the benefit of all.

Prizes of garden centre vouchers and a shield were handed out to winners in a ceremony at Woolwich Town Hall, where the top four in each category also received certificates. About 50 entries were received for four categories.

Kevin Ray, from Abbey Wood, won the best front garden landscape design, pipping R Kenward from Plumstead. Third was Mr M Hill from Eltham and fourth Mrs B Williams.

Mr G Parrish from Charlton won the best summer colour category, depositing last year's winners Mr and Mrs O'Rourke, from Abbey Wood, who were third.

Second was Mr Dolan from Charlton, moving up from fourth last year, and fourth was earned by Mr and Mrs Shrimpton from Abbey Wood.

Mr and Mrs O'Rourke did find glory, winning best window box or hanging basket, ahead of Aldona Vosyliene, from Greenwich, Ms C Tucker (Thamesmead) and Mr Parrish.

Best back garden went to Mrs S Hewson, from Eltham, second were Mr and Mrs Duignan, also from Eltham,

Lottery grant to help residents explore Great War history

by Dick Townsend-Smith

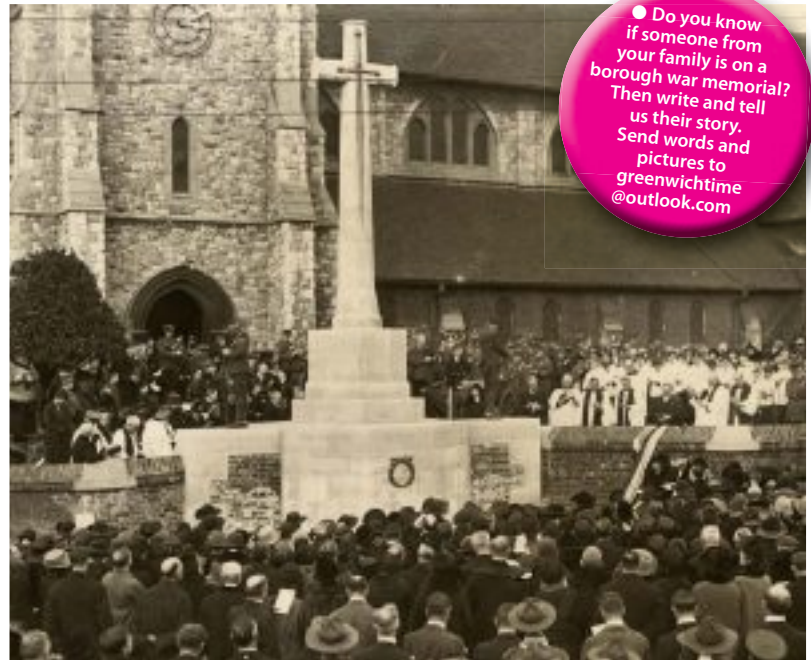

THE human stories behind the names carved on the borough's war memorials are to be brought to life again in an exciting and poignant project to commemorate the Great War.

Families are being asked to get involved and contribute to what could now be almost forgotten information about the local servicemen and women who died in the 1914-18 war.

It was the bloodiest conflict in the UK's history, with horrific casualties.

The project is part of national plans to mark the centenary of the start of the Great War next year.

The Heritage Lottery Fund is giving £10,000 to the Greenwich Heritage Centre on the Royal Arsenal to help fund the initiative, called 'Family Stories of the Great War'.

● Do you know if someone from your family is on a borough war memorial? Then write and tell us their story. Send words and pictures to greenwichtime@outlook.com

Names on the war memorials across the royal borough, such as Eltham and Charlton, will be logged so people can explore the stories behind them.

Heritage centre experts will work with volunteers and families to research and build a picture of local life during the years of conflict.

Volunteers will work with professionals to record their discoveries on the Imperial War Museum's digital archive in London.

The findings will form part of an exhibition which will go on show at different venues across the borough.

Local residents will have the opportunity to research their family history as well as learn about the history of the royal borough.

Cllr Chris Roberts, leader of the royal borough, said: "I am confident this project will generate a huge amount of interest as people find out more about the names on their local war memorials – in many cases they are likely to be relatives.

"It will be a poignant time for a lot of local people, and I hope more community groups will use the resources produced to research their own local war memorials and create a strong sense of pride and ownership of these monuments during this time of commemoration and beyond.

"We are delighted to receive the support of the Heritage Lottery Fund."

Sue Bowers, head of the Heritage Lottery Fund London, said: "The impact of the First World War was far-reaching and shaped every corner of the UK and beyond.

"The Heritage Lottery Fund has already invested more than £28 million in projects - large and small - that are marking this centenary.

"Our new small grants programme is enabling even more communities like those involved in Family Stories of the Great War to explore the continuing legacy of this conflict and help local young people in particular to broaden their understanding of how it has shaped our modern world."

A charity walk on the high side

HIGH STRIDERS: The Mayor and her group take to the skies above The O2

The Mayor of Greenwich has gone where few have managed to tread before - across the roof of The O2. The guided walk over one of London's major entertainment centres takes about 90 minutes and gives panoramic views of London.

Cllr Angela Cornforth undertook the experience for her charity appeal, raising more than £1,000 in aid of her designated causes The Prince's Trust and Barnados.

The eight-strong team included residents and councillors Barbara Barwick and Matt Clare.

Cllr Cornforth told GT: "It was an amazing experience and achievement. Everyone enjoyed it, even if it was a bit cold and wet. I would like to thank the staff of the O2 who really looked after everyone on the climb."

FRESH THINKING: Youngsters form a 'Green Chain' to promote exploring it

Pupils link up to promote Green Chain open spaces

CHILDREN from primary schools helping to promote the Green Chain finished with a parade in Woolwich Town Centre.

The carnival atmosphere was soon embraced by shoppers, which helped to spread the message about the chain, which links more than 50 miles of footpaths and 300 open spaces.

Children from Brooklands, Charlton Manor, Holy Family and Haimo primary schools paraded through the Market Square.

The pupils were taking part in a wider project to promote the links between woodland, commons, parks and recreation grounds.

The chain forms one of London's most diverse official long distance walks.

The London Wildlife Trust ran field trips with teachers to support educational activities outdoors which culminated in the town centre parade in Woolwich.

PARK LIFE: Greenwich local residents enjoy Maryon Wilson Park.

The Green Chain path can be followed from the Thames riverside at Woolwich, Thamesmead or Erith down to the southern suburbs of Crystal Palace and Nunhead, or over to Chislehurst.

There are 12 circular walks, such as around the Sutcliffe Park nature reserve.

Another section marks out Charlton Park to Bostall Woods and Plumstead Common to Oxleas Wood.

Spots highlighted are as diverse as athletics tracks and golf courses to a farm just seven miles from the City.

Or there are simple open park spaces, formal gardens, places to grow fruit and veg and picnic areas.

Cllr Harry Singh, the royal borough's cabinet member for greener Greenwich, said: "These children set a great example."

"It's really important that more young people are encouraged to walk and, in this royal borough, we are blessed with having so many open spaces that are near to our schools."

● Route guides for the Green Chain are available by calling 020 8921 5028, costing £3.50, via a cheque made payable to Greenwich Council.

They detail route instructions, distances, background information and area history.

WITH Christmas approaching the royal borough is urging residents to avoid illegal lenders and pay day loans to fund their festive expenses. Instead residents are encouraged to find safe sources of money and to get help from local money advice experts. Dan Stephens finds out more...

THE royal borough is urging residents to avoid loan sharks and expensive pay day loans to fund the expenses of Christmas.

Illegal lenders loan money without a licence and rarely provide paperwork. They charge outrageous interest rates leaving borrowers deeper in debt. And if payments are missed they may use threats and violence to get the money back. The festive season is when cash-strapped families are most at risk from illegal money lenders.

Experts are also concerned that locals may be tempted by pay day loans and other easy-to-get loan schemes without reading the small print about interest rates and penalties. As long as they are operating within the law the council cannot take action and urges residents to use reputable lenders such as the Greenwich and Bexley Credit Union.

The financial co-operative in Thomas Street, Woolwich, offers an easy way to save money or borrow a small loan for anyone living or working in the royal borough. The service is run purely for the benefit of members and there are no external shareholders, so money stays in the company and benefits the union's members.

The union has operated for more than 15 years and has 5,000 members and lends £2.8m per year.

Saving and borrowing is simple. Once a member, you make a regular saving every month and can apply for a loan after three months. Benefits include an annual dividend on savings, very low interest rates on loans, free life insurance on savings and loans, no hidden costs or early repayment fees and savings fully protected by the Financial Services Compensation Scheme.

Members come from all walks of life and can use their affordable loans and savings to pay for things like holidays, home improvements, birthday presents, weddings and religious festivals, to pay off existing debts or just to put money aside for a rainy day. It's easy and convenient to use.

Councillor Maureen O' Mara, the royal borough's cabinet member for community safety and environment said: "Credit unions are an ethical and affordable way to help manage your money and I'd encourage residents looking for financial services to contact their local branch to see if it can help. Borrowing money from a loan shark or unregulated lender is never the right decision and Greenwich's credit union is on safe alternative for those wishing to borrow."

To Join the Greenwich and Bexley Credit Union you must be over 16 and live or work in the borough.

● You can fill in an application form and send it to 48 Thomas Street, Woolwich, SE18 6HT, get further information or join online at www.gbcreditunion.com Call the Greenwich and Bexley Credit Union on 020 8855 4344.

Bishop of Woolwich visits 'part of a very strong community'

THE BISHOP of Woolwich Michael Ipgrave visited the Greenwich and Bexley Credit Union to meet staff and show support for the organisation's work in the community last week. Whilst there he discussed how local churches could work with the credit union to benefit residents of Greenwich. Bishop Ipgrave told GT: "Our credit union is a wonderful example of how people in communities can plan and live responsibly. The Archbishop of Canterbury has outlined the need to support people in times that are economically tough and credit unions play an important role in this." The Bishop was also keen to stress that the local Credit Union was one part of a very strong local community: "One of Woolwich's great strengths is its community and I think the credit union sits very well with this as it meets the expectations of a wide range of different people within this community."

Saving over three generations

ELLIS Stewart has seen the benefits of the credit union for three generations of her family. After signing up for a savings account 15 years ago, she's now in her eighties and a director of the local scheme. And her encouragement has led to her granddaughter and nephew reaping the benefits after opening credit union accounts early in their lives. Ellis signed her granddaughter up for a savings account aged only three-years-old. "The Greenwich Credit Union has grown immensely over the years I've known it and we now have over 5,000 members," she told GT. "Children are also encouraged to save with us and the four per cent dividend is not matched by many providers." And she's keen to stress the other many benefits saving or borrowing with a credit union has over high street banks or loan companies. "It's open to people who may not be able to get a loan or savings account and interest rates are extremely competitive" she explained. "There's absolutely no doubt that a credit union is a much better option than a payday lender as it doesn't allow loans that are unmanageable." Her granddaughter Oliva now 16 is planning to use her savings to pay for driving lessons next year. She said: "My gran used to take me down to the main office where I would write my own pay in slips and they would let me stamp them. I've lifted money out twice before, once when I wanted to buy wheelies when I was 10 and then when I was 12 to put towards a trampoline. Now I'm saving my money to go towards driving lessons and maybe towards a car as well."

VETERAN broadcaster David Dimbleby explores the history and majesty of Britain's coastline in a new BBC One series Britain and the Sea made in partnership with the National Maritime Museum.

The series started last weekend with the second episode in the four hour-long programme set to be broadcast on Sunday at 9pm. In it David sails around the coast of Britain in his boat Rocket to meet the people, uncover the artefacts and examine the places that tell the story of our island nation.

The programmes draw on a wide range of paintings and objects, including a selection from the museum's rich collections.

The objects convey Britain's mastery of the seas, which which transformed it into one of the richest and most powerful nations. Artefacts featured in the series include the massive silver-gilt Bombardment of Algiers centrepiece presented to Admiral Edward Pellew by the officers who served under him. It is displayed in the museum's Compass Lounge which will tell the story of the bombardment at Algiers on August 27 1816. Also in the programme is the magnificent brass Cole Compendium, a navigational tool reportedly made for Sir Francis Drake containing a compass, a calendar and a geometric square.

Dr Robert Blyth, senior curator of maritime history at the National Maritime Museum and consultant on the series said: "Working on this series was both fun and a challenge, especially searching through the museum's vast collections for paintings and objects connected with David Dimbleby's coastal voyages. David is clearly fascinated by the sea and its role in shaping British history".

To celebrate the series, the museum is hosting a series of special activities including the chance to hear about David Dimbleby's adventures first hand. David discusses his experiences sailing his boat Rocket around the coast of England with BBC news journalist Razia Iqbal at the museum on November 26. The talk, 'At Sea with David Dimbleby,' is followed by a tour of new exhibition Turner and the Sea opening later this month.

Also available, is an exclusive audio-tour narrated by David Dimbleby introducing visitors to some of the paintings in the Queen's House and other exhibition items which are featured in the TV series. Guides can be picked up at information desks in the Queen's House from November 27.

At Sea with David Dimbleby takes place at the National Maritime Museum, on Saturday November 26, from 6-8pm.

Admission is £12 talk only or £20 with entry to Turner and the Sea. Details on 020 8312 6565 or visit www.rmg.co.uk

ST ALFEGE'S ADVENT WINDOWS December 1-24

THE parish of Greenwich is brought alive by 24 unique offerings in the lead up to Christmas. Shops, homes, schools and pubs are putting their imagination and artistry to good use to produce the living Advent Calendar. A newly decorated window will be revealed, or "opened", on each day of Advent (December 1-24).

This year's theme is Heaven and Earth and each participant interprets the theme their own way using variety of media, including multimedia installations, models and paintings. This community initiative started in 2006 and was the idea of Gill Moody, wife of the vicar at St Alfege. You can find out more at www.adventwindows.com or twitter @adventwindows

- NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Council of the Royal Borough of Greenwich intends to make an Order to accommodate gas supply works in Plumstead Common Road and Warwick Terrace. The effect of the Order would be to temporarily prohibit vehicles:

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Small is beautiful Under Occupation scheme

If you are living in a Council property that is too big for you, we can help you to move to somewhere smaller.

The Council will pay your removal costs, and £350 for each bedroom gained.

To join the scheme you must be willing to move to a home with two bedrooms less than you have now:

- 3 bedroom to a 1 bedroom home
- 3 bedroom parlour / 4 bedroom to a 1 or 2 bedroom home
- 5 bedroom to a 3 bedroom (or smaller) home

Please note under the scheme we cannot consider tenants for a move to a house if they currently live in a flat or maisonette.

Sinha's stiff test

Barry still silver surfing hurdles at age of 72

SABRINA Sinha was expected to be among the medals last weekend in the London Youth Games' annual cross-country contest.

About 1,000 female runners were expected on Parliament Hill, Hampstead Heath, for the contest, in which she was representing the Royal Borough of Greenwich's team. Sabrina (pictured) won the under 13 title two years ago and went on to win not just the national cross-country title but also a silver for England in the international schools event in Perth in 2012.

Last year, the Cambridge Harrier again won the London Youth Games title, at under 15 level. This year the teenager, one of the athletes on the royal borough's Starting Blocks Trust scheme to support promising athletes, was set to face a stiff test in another rising star, Katy-Ann McDonald, from Wandsworth, who also won a string of cross-country titles last year at under 15 level.

INSPIRATION: Coach Barry Ferguson is leading by example by showing his proteges how to win medals

Not that Barry is settling for a rest now he is in the over 70s section - even after injury problems concerning his Achilles tendon and instep which hampered his preparations.

Exercises under direction from a physio and rehabilitation, rather than track work, have taken up his summer.

"Considering the circumstances, I was happy with silvers - let's face it, there were guys behind me," Barry, who began competition in his 40s, said of his medals.

"This gives me the impetus and hunger to give it my best for the world indoor championships in March in Hungary and the European outdoor championships [in Turkey next August]."

A lack of races meant he could have done with some heats in the 300m hurdles, which was a straight final, while he had a semi-final as well in the shorter distance.

Barry still does some training work at Charlton Park, where the Harriers were based when he started with them, while he has seen a succession of young athletes take up hurdles but move on to university where studies take priority.

As well as being youth secretary at the Harriers, he is also heavily involved in local veterans (over 35s) athletics, with the Kent-based league having two divisions. It is the biggest of the seven regional ones in the country, proving you don't have to be young to be fit and active.

Hurdler wins over 70s World Masters silvers

by Ian Lamont

BARRY Ferguson has proved that you don't need to be young with millions of people watching on television to a medal-winning inspiration.

And the 72-year-old not only won two world championship silver medals, but he did so in one of athletics' toughest individual events - hurdles.

But the Cambridge Harriers coach was not entirely happy with his performance and wants to claim gold in major championships next year - after he has inspired the next generation at his club in Sutcliffe Park.

Barry told GT that one parent come up to him to say that when his achievements get publicity, they can see what their children can achieve through hard work and dedication.

"I'll be able to say 'here's my medals. Now, do you want to earn some?'," said the lithe limbed runner, who took silvers over 80m hurdles and 300m hurdles in the World Masters Championships in Porto Alegre recently.

Masters athletes - the over 35s - do not get picked for their country, but have to enter and fund trips to world championships themselves.

"It cost me a couple of grand, but then people pay that just to sit on a beach. I got to win some medals and also see the sights," he added, mentioning trips to Rio, Sugarloaf Mountain and Iguaza Falls.

It also realised his ambition to compete on all five continents - and he has won medals on four of them.
